“THE ART OF SMALL”

My first tentative step into artistic expression was through photography. I moved my focus to painting in 2013 after attending several acrylic painting workshops. Over the last ten years I have continually explored new techniques and subjects.

Themes have included flowers, animals, still life and landscapes using many different mediums and styles. This series of small watercolour paintings has included some of those subjects.

I had dabbled in miniature paintings in 2015 when I painted dog portraits for family members. Those miniatures were only 2cm in diameter (the size of a 20-cent piece). These current paintings are a larger 4cm diameter. I love the precision needed when working at such a small scale, requiring the viewer to examine the work closely to appreciate its intricacies.

I was delighted to be given the opportunity to exhibit at this wonderful art space. A huge thank you to Sandy Macdonald and the Roma on Bungil Gallery committee for all their help and support.
